GREAT BRITAIN TO SHOW STRENGTH IN AIR TO GERMANY

Arranging A Gigantic Air Force Test Mobilization In Near Future

ARRANGES LOANS

Prime Minister Expected To Make Statement Today or Monday

By Charles A. Smith
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 7—(INS)—Dispatching airplanes to the continent, expediting huge arms loans to her allies, and arranging a gigantic air force test mobilization, Great Britain today continued to show Germany in concrete form that she is set to fight.

This readiness, as applicable to the Danzig crisis, will be set forth by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons, today or Monday. Chamberlain's statement has been delayed because Poland, while assenting in general to the text of his planned remarks, objected to minor details.

Opportunity for the declaration will be afforded Monday when Lieut. Commander Reginald Fletcher, Laborite, asks the Government for a statement on its policy in the event of any attempt to alter the regime in Danzig "externally or internally."

Positive measures which Britain is taking to convince the Reich of the Allies' earnestness include:

1. Ten long-range Wellington bombing planes, with 61 officers and men, were due to leave for Brussels today to participate in Sunday's Belgian air show.

2. Five squadrons of bombing and fighting planes, totaling 52, will go to Le Bourget field, Paris, Monday to fly in celebration of Bastille Day, French national holiday, July 14.

3. An untested number of air force reserves will be called up in a mobilization test in three or four months.

4. In late July and early August, large-scale mobilization exercises and maneuvers will be carried out by air force units.

5. Introduced yesterday, the bill calling for credits of $300,000,000 for munitions purchases by Britain's allies will be rushed through Parliament. With Poland getting the major share, most of the credits already have been earmarked.

Observers pointed out that some of the maneuvers and test mobilizations are planned for the months when the European crisis is expected to reach its height.

MORRISVILLE ATHLETIC FIELD NEAR COMPLETION

Grading Done On The Lower Level; Track Expected To Be Very Fast

FINE TYPE OF STANDS

MORRISVILLE, July 7—The new Robert Morris Athletic Field is rapidly nearing completion, and work has been started on the laying of pavement and curbs on West Hendrickson avenue and Harper avenue, streets paralleling the new sporting center.

All grading has been done near the Capitol View Building and on the lower level of the tract. The track, expected to be one of the fastest in this section, is being improved with the mixing of clay with cinders in order to give it a springy surface.

Wooden stands, with a scarcity of nails because of its new type construction, will be erected shortly as soon as the paving is completed. They will seat about 1,000 fans and the cost is estimated at $1,500. It is expected that the field will be ready in September and that Morrisville High's griders will play their five big home games upon the field this year. The building of the stands will get under way by August 1.

Although the original plans call for a baseball diamond and two tennis courts on the field, school authorities tentatively figure on keeping these off the new plant. Due to the poor interest in baseball this season, in which only 14 boys finished the year, and an estimated deficit of $800 the past four years, it seems likely that baseball will not be a major sport next season. Softball or inter-class baseball will be substituted. A baseball diamond would affect the football playing area and since interest is lacking authorities at this time doubt if they will build the diamond as planned in the middle of the track.

Tennis conditions on the lower level are not the best and school authorities have asked the WPA to shift men to the high school courts to improve the two there. If the suggestion is approved, the courts will be made larger and put in fine condition. Then the lower level of the new field would be used for softball and girls' hockey, with the upper field for football and track.

In This Day and Age?

(By "The Stroller")

We had our eyes opened a few days ago, and twice retraced our steps just to make sure we weren't dreaming.

The reason: A girl, approximately 13 or 14 years of age, pulling a cultivator in the absence of a beast of burden.

Back and forth across the field went the girl, pulling the cultivator, while a man guided it by grasping the two handles; a third individual following with a wheelbarrow.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Mr. Guffey Has An Idea
Washington, July 6.

NEXT to the vituperative Mr. Harold Ickes the most fantastic third-term in Washington is Senator Joseph Guffey, whose modest autobiography in the Congressional Directory consists of four simple words, "Democrat."

Pittsburgh, Pa., unmarried. This is quite a contrast to his Republican colleague, Senator James (Pudler) Davis, who uses close to 500 in outlining his colorful career.

IT is easy to understand Mr. Guffey's enthusiasm, as it is Mr. Ickes'. Both will drop completely out of public life when Mr. Roosevelt leaves the White House. Both would hate it. While Mr. Ickes resents the suggestion that his advocacy is linked with a desire to stay in office and brands as a "cheap taunt" the obviously true statement that no other man likely to become President would retain him as Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Guffey makes no such denial.

MEET "MOTHER" PULLEN

Following is one of a series of nine stories descriptive of a 23-day tour from Bristol to Alaska, with members of the National Editorial Association. The tour covered approximately 12,000 miles, and extended to numerous ports and inland to Mt. McKinley National Park, the Matanuska Valley, and Fairbanks, Alaska; and also to Lake Bennett, British Columbia. The party left Chicago by special train to Seattle, from which port the 236 travelled to Alaska on the chartered flagship "Aleutian" of the Alaska Steamship Company.

Article Three

Early on the morning of Friday, the 16th, was Juneau sighted, with all hands on deck to catch an early glimpse of the capital city, whose houses and industries appear to be perched one upon top of the other up the steep mountain-side. Snow piled deep during the long winter, and age-old glaciers are in and about the city. Quite prominent on the landscape is "The Alaska Juneau," the largest quartz gold mine in the world; while at the docks are countless boats, suggestive of Alaska's foremost industry—that of fishing.

Strains of "Don't Give Up the Ship" were wafted on the air from the pier as the ship gradually edged closer, the Chamber of Commerce members from Juneau having arranged a loud-speaker system for their greeting. Charles Carter, witty president of that body, brought smiles from the boatload of visitors with his quips at the association's officers, whom he had become acquainted with last year. Not a stone was left unturned for the pleasure of the men and women anxious to see all possible, in this great and colorful country. Buses awaited, the drivers well trained in handling crowds of sight-seers. Obligingly they made stops at mink and fox farms and other points for panoramic views of picturesque scenes. The fox were shedding, but the mink showed off to perfection, many a mother mink unknowingly performing for the crowd as she attempted to round up her young and get each

EXCEEDINGLY practical in politics, Mr. Guffey, who faces a fight for renomination next year, is fully aware that there isn't a chance for success if the Roosevelt game has played out. In his heart he suspects it has, but there isn't anything for him to do except proceed on the theory and in the hope that it hasn't. Elected in 1934 on the high Roosevelt tide, he has had more Federal patronage and more Federal support than any other three Democratic Senators. And he has gotten more Federal money

Secretary Swanson Dies

Washington, July 7—Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson, 77, died today at a summer camp at Rapidan, Virginia.

First word of the Secretary's death was given at the White House shortly before 9 a. m.

While the Secretary had been in failing health for several years, none of his immediate friends believed his death was imminent. Word of Swanson's death was given the press at the White House by the President's secretary.

President Roosevelt issued the following statement concerning the Secretary's death:

"It is with profound sorrow that I have learned of the death today in the Rapidan camp, Virginia, of the greatly loved Secretary of Navy Claude A. Swanson."

One of the most picturesque figures of the "first New Deal," Swanson had been completely out of the public eye for nearly all of the second Roosevelt administration. His virtual retirement dated from serious injuries sustained in a bathroom fall at his home, Swanson died at 8.06 this morning. He suffered a stroke yesterday, the second he had. Captain Myron C. Baker and Lieutenant E. C. Swanson were with him when he died.

THE PEOPLE CALL!

A steadily-growing demand for Roosevelt in 1940 is being heard throughout the land. His is the one name in the minds and on the tongues of multitudes.

You hear it everywhere—in stores, offices, factories, in clubs, on the golf courses, you hear it whenever two farmers discuss the state of the Nation across the fence in the lower forty.

There is no mistaking what they are saying, and that special emphasis is placed on the name Roosevelt, which is sprinkled generously throughout the conversations most heard today. Yes, sir; the people are calling Franklin D. Roosevelt—from Maine to California, from Canada to the Gulf. It is Roosevelt they are thinking of in connection with 1940, and there is almost unanimous agreement upon what they want him to do—

They want him to return to his mother's home at Hyde Park to rusticate and ruminate while a man takes hold at Washington and attempts to straighten out the mess he has created.

HOUSE ACTION ON RELIEF

The new relief bill passed by the House of Representatives is the most constructive piece of legislation of its kind that Washington has yet produced. The restrictions and limitations put upon WPA represent drastic revision of policy and method and should go a long way toward eliminating some political and financial abuses.

In the substitution of a three-man for a one-man administration and in some other features, the bill runs contrary to the wishes of the White House. For that reason its adoption by 373 to 21 is most gratifying. The vote is significant of the temper of the legislative body that last week moved to put a halter on the TVA.

COATTAIL JOE

Take Senator Joe Guffey—Coattail Joe—of Pennsylvania, for instance. You're welcome to him.

Coattail Joe's term expires next year. It's worrying Joe a lot, because Joe cannot figure how in the samhill he'll ever be re-elected, the New Deal being all blasted to smithereens in the Keystone State.

Joe, however, is a practical politician and as such never gives up. As such, also, he is much interested in the plight of the poor, the down-trodden, and the etc. It is for this reason, no doubt, that Joe says he's for a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt. Joe, who knows how to control delegates, says he is serious about this and isn't fooling in the least. When he runs for re-election next year he wants Franklin D. Roosevelt on the ticket with him.

Joe evidently wants to rub it in. When he goes under, he wants to drag the Head Man down with him.

Our President says the income tax base is to be broadened. In plain English, the little fellow will have less meat and potatoes on the home plate, as a result of the Roosevelt More Abundant Life.

The cause of sunspots continues a profound mystery in astronomical circles. Maybe the sun doesn't get outside enough.

You can tell when you are keeping up with the Joneses. You are three laps ahead of your income.

little sleek, black baby back into the plain box home.

Mendenhall Glacier, 11 miles from the city, interested one half of the party during the morning, and the mill of the Alaska Juneau gold mine during the afternoon; then the parties reversed. Mendenhall Glacier is one of the few in the world that can be reached by road, and has after bus sped out the Glacier Highway filled with those anxious to see the blue-tinted jagged river of ice. Mendenhall is a "dead" glacier, which unlike the "live" glaciers is dwindling as it recedes from 70 to 100 feet a year. The sheer wall at the face is black with dirt, possibly much of it gathered from dust from the nearby highway. There too, was a glacial stump, remnant of a tree of the pre-glacial period, sheered off with the advance of ice ages ago, then uncovered as the glacier receded.

Lemon Creek Glacier was also viewed on this trip along the Glacier Highway, while the meadows and the road-side were abloom with blue lupine and yellow butter-cups.

The Nugget Shop, one of Juneau's outstanding curio shops, quickly filled with shoppers after the return to town, one of the party purchasing for his wife a bracelet fashioned of 14 gold nuggets including the clasp while other shoppers looked on enviously.

The Hotel Baronof, with the Chamber of Commerce as host organization, and king salmon as the piece de resistance, was the scene of the day's luncheon. Guests of honor, including W. H. Conrad, Medford, Wis., president of the N. E. A.; President-elect Howard Palmer, Greenwich, Conn., and other association officials, and Mr. Silcox, chief of the Forest Service for the United States and all its Possessions, and others, spoke in the Gold Room; while at the over-flow session in the Bubble Room, Mrs. Harriet Pullen, known to Alaska as "Mother Pullen," and loved by all, delighted with stories of the Northwest, and her days of pioneering.

Most welcome of all greetings in the hotel drawing room were those of former Pennsylvanians, and it was with surprise and pleasure upon being presented to Miss Virginia Dudley, formerly of Norristown, Pa., that we heard her inquiries about two Bristolans, Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan B. Meiz. Of the Bucks County party, Miss Dudley inquired likewise of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sanborn, of Lansdale, newspaper publishers of that Montgomery county town.

Up and up led the wooden steps from the water level to the gold mill of the Alaska Juneau during the early afternoon. Parties of ten sang and marched to "The Volga Boatmen" in an attempt to keep up spirits as the temperature seemed to rise rapidly, the hot sun of mid-day beating down on the enclosed incline. Midst din of heavy crushers which reduced the large pieces of ore to small bits, and other machines which carried out the method of separation of gold in a manner suggestive of that followed in "panning" the visitors were shown from one level to another, each advance requiring another climb of 50 or more steps, until on to the hillside where conveyers carried the waste rock, was a gorgeous view of the city, the inlet, and the mountains covered with snow.

It seemed that all Juneau knew that guests were in town, and tried in every manner possible to please. Many a motorist transported small parties hither and yon, from the Territorial Museum to the shopping district, and so on. Wandering into a corner curio shop the proprietor delighted with the remark, "I wonder if the girls wouldn't like their picture taken in my parka," whereupon he proceeded to search through two trunks for the beautiful fur suit.

Awaking on Saturday morning, June 17th, we found ourselves on the Pacific, bound across the Gulf of Alaska for the port of Seward. A light rain was falling, but a smooth sea afforded as ship officers claimed "one of the sweetest passages" they have ever experienced, much to the joy of the land-lubbers. As the boat, hour after hour, ploughed across the Northern waters, those of the journalistic profession gathered in session in the after music-room for a day of addresses, round-table discussions, and awarding of journalistic prizes.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

SYNOPSIS

It was bad enough when Toni Goddard's father became bankrupt, but when her fiancé, the socially prominent Brock Milbank, eloped with Jessica Payne, it was almost more than she could bear. However, the homely philosophy of an old fisherman gives Toni hope. He compared life to a fisherman's net which, though torn, is mended and put to sea again, adding: "There's healing in work!" So Toni goes to New York in search of work. Weeks pass and she finds none. Then one day, Bridget, an old apple vendor, suggests that Toni try for the chorus of the New Gallic Casino, telling her to ask for Cassie. Toni fibs to Cassie that the latter's mother, in Cincinnati, sent her. She gets the job. The night before she is to go on, she watches the performance. A dark handsome man, sitting nearby, stares at her.

CHAPTER VIII

"Say, even if you did fib to me in the beginning, it was a darned lucky meeting, Toni!" announced Cassie Doyle.

She was cooking scrambled eggs and little link sausages on an electric plate for their noon-time breakfast, while the coffee bubbled. Toni had come to share her tiny apartment.

Toni liked Cassie. She was often amazed at her point of view, amused by her nonchalance, intrigued by her bohemian ways. The revue had been running two weeks at the Casino, and they were both still in it, at forty dollars per.

"Cute little place, isn't it?" purred Cassie, her bright eyes comically roaming over the living room that was cluttered with useless bric-a-brac and what-nots and absurd souvenirs. A breeze jangled the head curtains. They were hideous, thought Toni. But she wouldn't hurt kind, simple Cassie by saying so.

"You're a godsend, what with Herman so much away on the road. He's a swell feller, Herman, and a slick business fellow. One of these days," said Cassie dreamily, "he and me'll get married."

Love?—thought Toni ironically. She believed in love no longer. Poor Cassie!

"Say, why don't you give Fatty Gusheim a tumble, Toni?"—as Cassie dumped sausages and eggs on two hot plates. "He's got a crush on you, if you ask me. It's a well known proverb, in show business, to combine business with pleasure."

Repressing a shudder, Toni poured the coffee, measured the right quantity of evaporated milk. "My mind's on my career, Cassie, which has started nicely, thanks to you and old Bridget."

"But you can push the career along a lot quicker if you're nice to Fatty. You know, in his way he's not a bad sort. 'Course, I have Herman—"

Toni sighed and Cassie desisted. There was something different about Toni—a kind of haughtiness, fastidiousness, that stopped you. You just couldn't take "liberties."

Presently, the apartment straightened, Toni went out for her early afternoon walk. Rain or shine, nothing stopped her. Cassie was lazier. But then, Cassie figured that her own work in the revue was more strenuous, what with the dancing.

In an hour, Toni was back, carrying a bundle. She was excited. She had got a record bargain.

"I was walking along Forty-fifth Street, when a mysterious car with two men in it pulled up alongside me, and one of them leaned out and, looking around to see that there was no one near, told me he had a magnificent silver fox to dispose of, and would I look at it?"

"Yes. Go on. I've wanted one myself, but they're terribly expensive," said Cassie practically, adding: "Now if you'd only be nice to Fatty Gusheim—"

Toni interrupted. "I told him I only had ten dollars in my purse. He said the fur was worth at least a hundred, but I could have it for seventy-five. I walked away. The car followed, he still bargaining. Then I stopped, and he showed me the silver fox. It's just gorgeous. We haggled, and finally, believe it or not, he came all the way down to ten dollars!"

"Stolen!" said Cassie. "Of course, it was stolen, Toni. You must have known that!"

"How should I? I had no idea where they got it."

"Of course not, kid. Let me see it." Cassie tore off the wrapping, and, to their utter amazement, out tumbled what looked like a mangy old cat!

Toni was speechless. Dumbfounded. The two girls stared at the cheap imitation. It was terrible.

Finally Cassie found her voice. "Darling, the old sucker game! You knew there's one born every minute!" she chortled.

"Fatty" Gusheim, the director, kept Toni a little late after the show.

He had important business to discuss with her. The principal in the Monte Carlo-yachting scene had a touch of laryngitis. Toni had a nice voice. He'd like to hear it solo.

"Darling, the old sucker game! You knew there's one born every minute!" she chortled.

He suggested a late supper at Dave's Blue Room.

The importance of her career in mind, Toni accepted.

He ordered champagne. Toni partook of it sparingly. He urged her to take more.

"Say, why can't a girl of your good looks loosen up a bit?" he asked irritably.

"But you wanted to hear my voice. Champagne won't do it any good," she excused herself, speaking placatingly.

"You'll have the audition tomorrow morning. We'll set it for noon. That'll give you plenty of time for sleep. Don't worry."

There was something in his tone and words she did not like. Nor was she surprised, though considerably dismayed, when presently he suggested that they go up to his apartment.

"I have a piano there," he added, seeing her look. "We'll have a preliminary try-out. What say?"

He waited for her answer.

"Why," stammered Toni, "there's a piano right here in this room, and an accompanist." The place was rather empty at the moment. She was cornered. As an alternative she would rather sing here than risk a visit to the man's apartment. "The accompanist is sure to know my songs, and I don't think the management would mind. Do let me."

At this moment, the manager stopped for a word with the director, and Toni plunged into her request. "We'd be delighted," said the manager. Before Fatty could say anything, he beckoned the man at the piano, and Toni and he had a conference.

She was anxious to sing now, to get it over, before more people came into this late night spot. Yes, she knew French. She'd prefer to sing in French, as did the leading lady of the yachting scene for whom, provided she gave a satisfactory performance, she would substitute tomorrow night.

Toni went over to the orchestra stand. Her heart was thudding. She would conquer her nervousness. The rippling cords ran up and down the piano. "Petit Jeune Amour, Mon Petit Jeune Amour," sang Toni, in her throaty contralto.

At the conclusion of the song came a burst of applause. A slim, sallow-looking man, who seemed as though he had been poured into his evening clothes, so perfectly they fitted, clapped loudest, from his table in the restaurant.

"Bis! Bis! Encore!" he exclaimed. Toni had a quick conference with the pianist. Then she went into the exquisite strains of "Parlez Moi d'Amour."

A curious,

DINNER IN HALF AN HOUR

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

If you are one of those busy or business housekeepers who find it necessary to be away from home until late afternoon, we know exactly what your meal-planning problem is. It's our problem, too! For when we get home after business hours, it's usually pretty close to dinnertime. So it has become a habit with us to plan dinners that we can prepare in a short time. But it does mean planning our meals and our marketing, and sometimes it requires some preparation beforehand. In doing this we depend very much on our refrigerator and make it work closely with the range. It's not a comfortable feeling to be rushed in getting dinner, and that's what we try to avoid by planning menus like this one:

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of
Good Housekeeping
Institute

Tomato Juice
Devised Hamburgers
Broiled Pineapple Slices
String Beans
Bread
Maple Mousse
Coffee

The Devised Hamburgers were made up the night before and stored in the refrigerator. The pineapple slices will line up alongside the meat under the pre-heated broiler. The string beans are of the packaged, quick-frozen kind, for quick-frozen vegetables, meats, fish and fruits are boons when time cannot be bought at any price. They are so deliciously fresh and may be stored in the chilling unit of your refrigerator until time to use. They should, of course, be kept frozen until ready to cook. Canned string beans can also be used, but be sure to cook them the Institute way. Drain the liquor from the vegetable and boil it in a saucepan or skillet until two-thirds of the liquor has evaporated. Then add the string beans, heat thoroughly, add seasonings, and serve.

The dessert can be made in the refrigerator the night before. The cold control of the refrigerator is turned to the coldest setting until the cream mixture is frozen, then the control is turned back to a warmer setting which keeps the cream frozen and yet does not make unusual demands on the refrigerator.

DE-ILED HAMBURGERS

(Served 6, Good Housekeeping Institute)

1 1/2 lb. chuck steak, ground
2 tsp. minced onion
1/3 c. chili sauce
2 tsp. Worcestershire-type sauce
2 tsp. prepared mustard
1 1/2 tsp. salt
2 tsp. bottled horseradish

Combine all the ingredients. Shape into 10 cakes about 2" in diameter. Brown in hot fat in a skillet for 4 min. on each side or broil in a broiler over preheated for 10 min., for 4 min. on each side. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3 make half this recipe. For open sandwiches make half this recipe. Toast 6 slices of bread on one side. Spread the untoasted side of each slice with hamburger mixture, and broil 8 minutes. Serves 6.

COMMUNICATION

Editor,
The Bristol Courier.

Dear Editor:

I have been at the fair two and one-half days and the summary of what we have seen has been simply wonderful. This fair is a fantastic conglomeration of shapes and forms which are indescribable.

The buildings and exhibits which I have visited already are imprinted on my mind and have given me a knowledge which I shall never forget. I would like to advise any visitors of the fair to see the General Motors Exhibit, the General Electric Exhibit, and the combination of lights, flames and music at the Lagoon of Nations at 9.30 every evening. The exhibit of lights, flame and music is a story which changes weekly.

While I have been here there has been a Canadian exhibit with Canadian Royal Mounted Police, also the Associate Glee Clubs, and a Canadian Boy Scout whose name is Hagu, with a Scotch uniform. There is plenty doing here all the time.

We boys work on an average of four hours a day, and the rest of the day we tour the fair. The camp is a two acre tract, fitted for 150 Scouts a week, and the troops (four at a time) being staggered weekly. There is lots of fresh air at the camp and there is always a nice breeze coming in.

The camp is located behind the U. S. A. Federal Building. Visitors welcome between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m.

JOHN WELSH,
Boy Scout.

PAUL AND STROMP STAGE PITCHERS' DUEL

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

ROHM & HAAS at GRUNDY'S
(Grundy's field)
Umpire, Kervick; Scorer, Tomlinson

"Jake" Paul and Ralph Stromp engaged in a pitcher's duel last evening on Leedom's field as in the game two weeks ago, the tilt ended without a victor, the score finishing 2-2. It was the third deadlock played between the teams this season.

Stromp outpitched Paul, giving the Odd Fellows but four safe hits. The Hall Aluminum team collected eight off the slants of the Oddies' twirler but four of these were credited to Bill Dougherty who delivered safely on each occasion he stepped to the plate.

The aircraft workers tied the count with two gone in the last frame. Hits by Dougherty and H. McCue did the trick. It was the first run to count for the Hall team since the first canto when Dougherty hit safely, was forced by Bauroth and Gallagher came through with a bingle.

A hit by Cooper and a sacrifice by Dewsnap gave the Oddies their first marker while the second came as the result of a hit by Berry, a sacrifice, and an error by Dougherty.

DI RENZO TEAM SCORES THREE STRAIGHT WINS

By trimming the aircraft ten, the DiRenzo ten copped its third consecutive victory. This exciting game was witnessed by a large crowd. It was a big 6th inning for the DiRenzo team when they shoved across four runs. This game kept the DiRenzo team up with the league leaders.

"Phil" DiTanna was the big man with the stick. He drove out two extra base hits, one a line double and the other a long triple to centerfield.

The key man for the Fleetwings was Manis who collected himself a single and a double at three times at bat.

FIFTH WARD CLUB GRABS FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE

Hitting "Mike" DeRist freely, the Fifth Ward Sporting Club captured first place in the Community Softball League, trimming the Aces, 11-2, on the Bristol High School field.

Not only did the Warders hit freely but their defensive playing and the pitching of Quinto stood out. Quinto held the Aces to five hits and not one of these was for an extra base.

The league-leaders scored seven markers in the early frames and from then on it was just the matter of finishing up. Fifth Ward plays the Grundy team on the high school field this evening.

Gehrig Touched by Fans' Honor

Lou Gehrig breaks down as he speaks over microphone

Deeply moved by a gigantic ovation given him by 60,000 fans in New York, Lou Gehrig, the "Iron Horse" of baseball, weeps as he talks over a public address system. It was "Gehrig Day" and the veteran Yankee player received many gifts from fans, friends and club officials.

PROFY'S STARS AND AUTO BOYS TO MEET TONIGHT

Profy's Stars are in for the toughest game of the season tonight, says Leon Slavin, sponsor of the Auto Boys team. The game is to be played on Leedom's field.

The game has been the subject of a great deal of discussion among the members of both teams and the main object of the players of both teams is to defeat their opponents.

It is expected there will be a large crowd on hand to witness this softball game tonight when the two rivals meet.

"AL" CAREY MAY PITCH FOR LANDRETH TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Saturday evening, at 5:30, the Locust Cardinals of Germantown will oppose Landreth's at the Landreth ball park. The Cardinals are members of the Philadelphia Baseball League, and at the present time are playing a very high class article of ball.

Last year when the Cardinals appeared at Landreth Ball Park the home club after a very exciting game was victorious, 2-1, so the game tomorrow evening should be a very good one. This is the first game this year played on a Saturday evening, so it is hoped a big crowd will be on hand, and if the turn-out is satisfactory, more games will be played on Saturday evening.

"Al" Carey will probably pitch for the "farmers," with Jack Broderick behind the plate.

Sunday, Mount Holly will be the attraction at Landreth Ball Park at 3 p. m.

Scouts Return From Week At The Fair

three other troops from New York state, New Jersey and Maryland for the past week.

Scout Executive Robert B. Goeller, who visited the troop yesterday on the Fair Grounds, together with Scout Commissioner William Burgess, Jr., reported that he found the boys all happy and that they all stated they had lots to eat and there was lots to see.

Harry A. Behm, assistant Scoutmaster of the Fair troop and Scoutmaster of the St. Francis School troop, reported that the first day, one of his assignments was to find an elderly lady who was lost somewhere on the fair grounds. He and two Bucks County Scouts searched the grounds and found the lady who had become lost and confused, and it developed that she was the mother of the Governor of Tennessee. They put her on a train and called her hotel to arrange to have her met at the Penna. station, New York. This type of service is being rendered daily by the 150 scouts who are camping at the Fair each week.

The Great Game of Politics

for his State than anyone else in the last six years. The total is stupendous.

THOSE who know the facts know that the political services of Mr. Guffey to the Roosevelt cause, while not at all disinterested, were such as to make the favors he has received seem deserved. For example, it was Mr. Guffey who, early in 1932, blocked the Al Smith candidacy and, by declaring for Mr. Roosevelt long before the primaries, delivered the big Pennsylvania delegation in the convention. It is all very well to talk of Mr. Garner and Mr. McAdoo, but if it had not been for Mr. Guffey's early stand no last-minute switch would have nominated Mr. Roosevelt in 1932.

LATER, Mr. Guffey performed two services for Mr. Roosevelt of great political value, however dubious their contribution to the general welfare. Largely through him the President and Mr. Lewis were brought together and the alliance with the C. I. O., so fruitful in campaign donations and votes, was effected. Again it was Mr. Guffey, who, in 1933, sold Mr. Roosevelt the noble idea of luring from the Republicans their basic political asset—to wit, the big Negro vote in eleven debatable States of the North. Starting with the appointment of the Negro editor, Robert L. Vann, as Special Attorney General, a long undercover campaign to win over the Negroes was waged.

THE result was that in 1936 Mr. Roosevelt polled more than ninety per cent. of the Negro vote. Of course, it could not have been done without relief funds, but it was done, and it was Mr. Guffey's idea. The fact that Mr. Guffey was helping himself while helping the President makes no difference. It was inevitable that with Federal jobs, Federal funds and Federal favors Mr. Guffey should build up what seemed an impregnable machine in his State. He was quite widely written up as the strongest political boss in the country, which made it all the more remarkable when, last year, his own organization got out from his control, refused to nominate his candidate and left him in a somewhat humiliating position. Nor did it help much when the Republicans carried the State in November.

AT the last session of Congress Mr. Guffey was the gentleman who urged the "purge" of the Democratic Senators who had opposed the President's court-packing plan and predicted their defeat. This got him a terrific tongue lashing from the Senators concerned, and subsequent events destroyed his reputation as a political prophet. As things stand today, Mr. Guffey's sole hope of survival as a Senator rests upon Mr. Roosevelt's renomination and re-election. That's the only issue he has in Pennsylvania. If he can't win on that, he can't win at all. If Mr. Roosevelt does not run, then Mr. Guffey will be pushed aside next year as he was last year. And well he knows it.

UNDER the circumstances, if he were not out cheering for four more years of Roosevelt it would be surprising, indeed. However, he must be given credit for a novel argument. Mr. Ickes, it will be recalled, endeavored to show that Washington was not really against a third term and that there is no sense in the tradition. A little later Solicitor General Robert Jackson voiced the extraordinary view that there was no third-term issue involved. The courts, he said, had "canceled" what would have been Mr. Roosevelt's first term; therefore, if he should be renominated it would really be for his second term. Mr. Guffey beats this idea all hollow. Mr. Roosevelt's first term, he agrees, was "canceled" by the courts, but he was "robbed of his second term by the Tories and big gamesters." Hence, next year if renominated it would really be for his first term. Up to date, that seems tops in political originality.

the girl behind your telephone bill

Every month this company prepares nearly 750,000 telephone bills. This gigantic task requires the services of more than 1,000 people—mostly women.

There are literally millions of operations and hundreds of millions of figures involved in the preparation of these bills. Yet careful checks show that, so far as the accounting work is concerned, better than 999 out of every thousand bills are absolutely accurate.

In tribute to those who have achieved this remarkable record, we present the typical Accounting girl!*

HER FIRST JOB...

She's 24 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 123 pounds, has brown hair, blue eyes. With little experience, but eager to learn, she started her telephone career at the age of 18—soon after leaving high school or business school. Her first task was to help sort the millions of toll charge tickets on which operators record out-of-town calls.

SHE IS PROMOTED...

Moving up through various jobs, she learns to operate calculators and other complex billing machines. She runs them with a speed that would amaze you, but above speed—above everything—comes ACCURACY. Every billing operation is checked, double-checked—even triple-checked—to make your bills correct.

A SOCIABLE GROUP...

She works hard and enjoys her job; finds many congenial companions at the office. Together, they go swimming, go bowling in the company league, play tennis, hike, give showers for the girls who leave to be married. On their own initiative, some of our Accounting girls have organized classes and lecture courses for social and cultural education. Most of them take the health courses, promoted by our Medical Department.

FUN-LOVING, GENEROUS...

For entertainment, she likes best Spencer Tracy and Norma Shearer, Kathleen Norris, and on the air, dramatic presentations. Few weeks go by without at least one party for Accounting girls to attend. With all her love of fun, however, the girl who makes out your bill is generous and thoughtful of others. She contributes $8.00 a week to the support of her home; gives $3.00 a month to church and charities. She sets aside $3.25 a week for savings and insurance.

SHE COMES IN SMILING...

She works 7 1/2 hours a day, 5 days a week, but still finds time to help her mother with the housework and spend a few evenings with the boy-friend, in addition to all the activities already mentioned. Sometimes we wonder how she does so much, but being a healthy, average American girl, she can dance 'til midnight and come in next morning with a spring in her step, a smile on her face and a sparkle in her eye.

AND THAT IS THE GIRL behind your telephone bill. Day after day, she plays her part to keep the wheels of telephone service moving swiftly and smoothly. Like all telephone men and women, she is trying to give you the kind of service that makes you glad you have a telephone.

*Facts and figures in this advertisement are based on a survey of the young women in our Accounting Department.
